DIED IN THE WOOL.

Shepherd Milton Mouse is compelled to send an annoying black sheep away. Rid of the trouble-maker, Milt goes on to visit Rita, his sweetie.

Terrible Thomas Cat, strolling along with his unwilling mouse accomplice, see the lovers. He runs off to make a bargain with a wolf. On his return, Tom forces his dupe to don feminine garb and vamp Milt who is now playing a flute in the meadow.

While Milt is falling for the wiles of the masquerader, Tom chases the sheep into the wolf's coral and races to the sweet little Rita. The impersonator discloses the scheme to Milt, who runs back to defend Rita.

Meanwhile, the black sheep hearing the flock's cry for help, releases them, rides them to save Milt and Rita. So, all's swell that ends well.
